Punctum. Semiotics Monographs is a series committed to supporting the publication of long-form monographs and edited collections in all fields of semiotic research. Aimed to highlight both original and novel themes and problematics within the semiotic discipline, it invites proposals from 30.000 up to 60.000 words (incl. references), i.e., of significantly larger scope and depth than research articles but not reaching the typical book length. The series volumes are published in English and are free to access and download via the website of Punctum. International Journal of Semiotics under the Creative Commons License CC-BY-NC 4.0 International. All proposals and manuscripts are refereed by the journal's Editorial Board and the series editor(s).
