

Call for presenters

Multiplayer event SoMovED. Study day, workshops, urban walks.

Mobility. Urban space. Learning. Reggio Emilia, Tuesday 13 April 2023

Building on the experience of the European project SoMovED (Social Education on the Move-Nr. 2020-1-PL01-KA203-082186), the study-day aims to create an opportunity for discussion and debate on topics related to mobile studies, in the broadest sense of the term. Starting from urban space as a place of encounter and confrontation, but also as a playground, a space for learning, arriving at technologies in movement and the relationship these triangulate with society and spaces. Experiences that use movement as a research methodology (such as, for instance, walking interviews, exploratory walks and flânerie) or for educational purposes are welcome.

Topics for papers may include, but are not limited to:

- Urban spaces and movement in a sociological and anthropological perspective
- Semiotics of urban space
- Case studies related to mobility as an educational opportunity
- Location-based games
- Research in motion
- Flânerie
- Businesses in motion
- Art and urban walks
- Cinema and urban exploration.

Abstracts of contributions (min. 500 words)

Please forward submissions and any questions to Professor Federico Montanari federico.montanari@unimore.it and/or Dr. Giulia Conti giulia.conti@unipr.it

Deadline for submissions: 26th March 2023.

Teachers of all levels, representatives of institutions and industry, social workers and interested people are invited to participate. PhD students, students and young researchers are strongly encouraged to present their research.

Acceptances will be notified by 01/04/2023. The study-day is free of charge.